

SUN YAT SEN NANYANG MEMORIAL HALL

LET'S CELEBRATE WITH
UNCLE TING: MID-AUTUMN FESTIVAL

Name: .....

Published by

A Heritage Institution of

Owned by

Supported by

Let's Go for a Hunt!

Uncle Ting is at Chinatown celebrating Mid-Autumn Festival. Let's find him and the following items in the picture.

Uncle Ting

3 Lanterns

2 Pomelos

1 Chang'E
(Moon Goddess) Poster

4 Mooncakes

Spot this oil painting in the Sun Yat Sen Nanyang Memorial Hall!

The consumption of mooncakes is one of the most popular customs associated with the Mid-Autumn Festival. Another popular custom is the lighting and carrying of lanterns. During this festival, families and friends gather to appreciate the full moon, which is believed to be at its brightest and fullest.

Mix & Match!

Help Uncle Ting match the mooncakes from the various dialect groups to the correct descriptions!

Hainanese Mooncake

A round-shaped brown pastry which is commonly filled with lotus paste and sometimes contain salted duck egg yolks.

Hakka Mooncake

This nutty and subtly spicy pastry is filled with dried tangerine, salt, pepper, as well as melon and sesame seeds.

Hokkien Mooncake

This white, flat and circular-shaped pastry is mainly made with glutinous rice flour and sugar.

Teochew Mooncake

Also known as a "scholar cake", this disc-like pastry is filled with a dry and sweet filling which includes candied winter melon, tangerine peel and melon seeds.

Cantonese Mooncake

This spiral-shaped pastry with a flaky crust usually contains yam paste and salted duck egg yolks.

Which of the above is your favourite kind of mooncake?
Why do you like it?

---

---

Let's Draw!

According to a Chinese myth, 10 suns once rose into the skies at the same time and caused severe drought and famine. Houyi, an expert archer, shot down 9 suns and was rewarded with an elixir of immortality.

A disciple of his tried to steal the elixir and to stop this, Houyi's wife Chang'E swallowed the elixir and ascended to the heavens. In order to stay close to her beloved husband, Chang'E made the moon her eternal residence and later became known as the Moon Goddess.

Draw your own comic strip based on this story!

Let's Colour and Create!

The legend of Chang'E is one of the most well-known stories associated with the Mid-Autumn Festival. The Jade Rabbit served as her companion on the moon.

Colour the Jade Rabbit and create your very own lantern!

Step 1: Cut along the solid lines.

Step 2: Fold the paper in half and cut along the dotted lines.

Step 3: Unfold the paper and glue the A tab to the B tab.

